Some Parents Bring Up Their Children

as if life were a holiday.

After much observation, it is apparent that many fathers and mothers do not teach their boys the value of time or money, though they expect them to turn out models of thrift.

All children should be taught to work and to save as well as to play. "A penny saved is a penny earned."

These young, innocent travelers should not be put on the untried road of life, in its early morning, without a sympathetic view of the course to follow, carefully laid out from an old traveler's observation and experience.

Let the mothers also, who did so much to win the war by their well regulated work, have a say to their big, growing boys.

Advise your boys to open an account in one of the good savings funds.
